Lab animals to be aboard shuttle flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Technicians were lowered by ropes and pulleys down a tunnel into the shuttle Challenger's Spacelab science module Sunday and loaded 24 rats and a pair of squirrel monkeys for launch Monday with a crew of seven men.

Blastoff for the 17th shuttle mission was scheduled for 11 a.m. Monday — just 17 days after Challenger's sister ship Discovery was launched, a record for ground crews that signals a return to an interrupted launch-a-month pace.

"All systems are 'go' and everything is looking good," said shuttle chief Jesse Moore. "We're showing a thumbs-up sign right now. We're all ready to go and looking forward to a good mission and a lot of scientific data to be returned from this flight."

Air Force forecasters predicted acceptable weather for launch Monday in what will be Challenger's first flight since October because of lengthy repairs of the spaceship's heat-shield tile system and trouble with a satellite that was to have been launched in March but was not.

But Moore said the rapid April "turnaround" between two shuttle flights represents a growing capability and "we've matured an awful lot. I'm very proud of where this whole program has come."

Challenger's crew, which includes two civilian scientists, plans to spend seven days in orbit to conduct a series of experiments in fluid dynamics, astrophysics, life sciences and studies of man-made and natural pollutants in Earth's upper atmosphere.

The animals were loaded aboard by technicians who used a system of ropes and pulleys to gain access to the Spacelab module, some 30 feet below Challenger's crew cabin in the shuttle's payload bay.

But the presence of the animals aboard the $1 billion European-built Spacelab has prompted protests from animal rights activists and plans for a demonstration near the Kennedy Space Center on Monday.

"As far as we're concerned, our treatment of the animals is certainly in a humane vein," said mission manager Joseph Cremin.

The rats and two squirrel monkeys — known only as "384-80" and "3165" — are on board to test the high-tech cages that will be used in future Spacelab life science missions.

The Saluki Musical Chair-ity fell about 2,500 people short of breaking the world's record of 5,060. The event, to raise money for Easter Seals, attracted only about 3,500 participants. The amount of money raised was not available Sunday. State representative Ralph Dunn, Bruce Swirburne, vice president for student affairs, and Carbondale Mayor Helen Westberg were on hand with opening remarks.

Reagan won't cancel Bitburg visit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan "is wounded ... in his heart" by criticism of his plan to visit a German military cemetery, White House chief of staff Donald Regan said Sunday, but there is no chance the event will be canceled.

The president, who leaves Tuesday on a 10-day visit to Europe, spent Sunday at the White House reviewing briefing books on the four countries he will tour — Germany, site of an economic summit and the Bitburg cemetery with its controversial Nazi SS graves, plus Spain, France and Portugal.

The journey, including an address by Reagan in Strasbourg, France, May 8 to mark the defeat of Hitler, has been marred by criticism from Jewish groups and American veterans of plans for Reagan to join West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl in a wreath-laying ceremony at Bitburg.

"It's unfortunate the way this has dominated the real purpose of the visit, to show the reconciliation between the United States and Germany 40 years later," Regan said in an interview on CBS's "Face the Nation."

When asked directly if "there is any chance" the Bitburg stop would be canceled, Regan replied, "No, there isn't."

In an apparent effort to put the cemetery event into perspective, Regan said, "You've got to remember, it's only going to be 10 or 15 minutes," then said the president will spend more than an hour at the Bergen-Belsen concentration camp — an event added to the schedule after the cemetery furor erupted.

Suspect in critical condition after hospital fire

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — A teenager suspected of setting a mental hospital blaze was in critical condition Sunday, burned in the fire that killed 79 people and injured 247 others, authorities said.

Carlos Braga, 19, is suspected of setting the fire at the Santi Emilien psychiatric clinic Friday night because of his history of attempting to burn his bedspreads and mattresses, police said.

The teenager's mother, Emiliana Braga, in an interview published Sunday in the newspaper La Nacion, denied reports her son was responsible for the blaze.

She admitted her son had "tried to burn the clinic on two occasions."

"But he did not cause this tragedy," she said. "Not only that, but it appears Carlos was taking tea when the fire began and in the middle of the inferno he rescued a woman named Gloria."

Police and firemen have not given an official explanation of the cause of the fire in the seven-story building, described by some newspapers as the worst fire in Argentine history.

But they are investigating reports from witnesses that Braga may have set fire to his room for a third time.

The teenager was said by an Asistencia Hospital spokesman to be in "grave condition" with burns over 60 percent of his body.

Authorities said police held hospital director Omar del Azar and an unidentified administrator Sunday for questioning. Magistrate Judge Victor Petticiani said authorities were deciding whether to press criminal charges.

President Raul Alfonsin

ordered Health Minister Aldo Neri to inspect the site of the tragedy and visit the survivors Saturday along with Secretary of Community Health Teodoro Puga.

"We are here to evaluate this situation and apply all our resources so that the outcome of this disaster won't be worse than it is already," Neri said.

The fire is believed to have begun on the third or fourth floor of the clinic.

Five killed in natural gas pipeline explosion

BEAUMONT, Ky. (UPI) — Five people were killed and three others injured in a natural gas pipeline explosion that leveled four houses, left a crater 35 feet deep and blackened the earth for a half-mile radius, officials said Sunday.

"It looks like somebody just dropped a bomb," said Gordon Nichols, spokesman for the state Disaster and Emergency Services office. "It was just clean — flat to the ground with no foundations left from any of the homes or anything."

Witnesses said the blast lit up the sky about 10:15 p.m. Saturday, and flames were visible four counties away, a spokesman said. About 50 people were evacuated, and firefighters remained Sunday to mop up and make sure there were no flareups from up to 30 fires started by the explosion.

Authorities believe three people died in one of the gutted homes. Remains of a fourth victim were found in the same area Sunday and the death toll climbed to five by late afternoon.

"It is confirmed we have a fifth body," Nichols said. "There's a forensic anthropologist there who's a pretty sharp guy. When he got down there and went through what they had he realized they had another body."

"What they're looking at is just charred remains," Nichols said, adding that authorities thought they had accounted for all the missing.

The names of the victims were not released immediately. Nichols said the Metcalfe County coroner and the National Guard had set up a tent to serve as a temporary morgue.

In addition to four houses, the explosion damaged a mobile home and injured the three occupants, including a 9-month-old girl.

El Salvadoran troops kill 12 rebels during fighting

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Government troops killed 12 rebels and captured a field hospital and clandestine radio transmitter during weekend fighting with about 10,000 leftist guerrillas, an army spokesman said Sunday. The rebels were killed Saturday on Chichontepec Volcano, in San Vicente province about 25 miles east of San Salvador, the spokesman said. Three army troops died in the fighting, he said.

South African police kill man holding toy gun

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — South African police killed a black man who threatened them Sunday with a gun that later was found to be a toy, a police spokesman said. The death brought to seven the number of people killed in weekend racial violence around South Africa. The latest shooting occurred when police moved to guard a fire truck under attack by rioters in the Port Elizabeth black township of Kwazakale, about 600 miles south of Johannesburg.

Druze gunmen smash through Christian area

JIYEH, Lebanon (UPI) — Druze Moslem gunmen backed by Soviet-made tanks smashed through a Christian enclave near Sidon Sunday as their Moslem "People's Army" allies plundered Christian villages in southern Lebanon. At least 10 deaths were reported. In Beirut, Christian and Moslem militiamen fought for 11 hours with mortars and rocket-propelled grenades along the "Green Line" dividing the capital. Beirut radio reported at least 20 casualties.

Expert predicts new energy crisis for U.S.

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Unless the nation's dependence on oil is curtailed and new energy resources are developed, the United States could face an energy crisis far more serious than those of the 1970s, an energy expert says. Elihu Bergman, head of Americans for Energy Independence, said it is time to start planning now for an energy price crisis that seems inevitable in the 1990s. Bergman said any substantial increase in world demand for oil would result in increased reliance on oil from the nations that are members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Reagan's farm popularity plummets in Iowa

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — President Reagan's popularity among Iowa farmers has plummeted since the November election because of discontent with the government's handling of the farm debt crisis, a poll showed Sunday. Sixty-three percent of the Iowa farmers interviewed for a Des Moines Sunday Register poll said they disapprove of the job Reagan is doing. Farmers supported Reagan by a margin of 2-to-1 in last November's election and gave the president a 58-percent approval rating in a similar poll taken before the 1984 election.

Khadafy seeks to unite Arab world radicals

TRIPOLI, Libya (UPI) — A new pan-Arab revolutionary organization created by Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy is pledged to strike U.S. interests, but Tunisia may be a more immediate target. Khadafy announced the creation of the "National Command of Revolutionary Forces in the Arab World" on March 31, its aim to "liberate and unite" the Arab world. Khadafy's latest bid for influence beyond his own desert nation of 3.5 million comes at a time when he appears to have contained the threat from dissidents inside Libya.

Study faults hazardous waste disposal sites

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Toxic materials have seeped into the ground water at 45 percent of the hazardous waste disposal sites surveyed in a congressional study, a House Energy and Commerce subcommittee said Sunday. The survey of 1,246 facilities also found that government monitoring of the sites is "inaccurate, incomplete and unreliable." The survey found "some indication of ground water contamination" at 559, or 45 percent, of the facilities surveyed.

Artificial heart recipient given tribute during burial

LE ROY (UPI) — Jack Burcham, the world's fifth and oldest artificial heart recipient, was buried with a 21-gun salute and a tribute to his "courageous spirit." About 250 mourners gathered Saturday at the Oak Grave Cemetery to bury their friend and neighbor, who lived only 10 days with the artificial heart pumping in his chest. Burcham, 62, died Wednesday night at Humana Hospital Audubon in Louisville, Ky., where he received his Jarvik-7 heart April 14. He was the oldest person to have undergone the artificial pump implant.

Former student helps win Pulitzer

By Cathy Brown
Staff Writer

A former SIU-C student and Daily Egyptian photographer, Hal Stoelzie, has helped win a Pulitzer prize for his employer, The Register, a newspaper in Orange County, Calif.

The Register was awarded a Pulitzer for its "exceptional" photographic coverage of the 1984 Olympics Games. Stoelzie was one of three Register photographers who contributed the majority of photographs last summer for the Register's special daily section on the Olympics.

Stoelzie, who attended SIU-C from 1962 to 1966, said over the two-week period of the 1984 Olympics, the newspaper ran 187 color photos and 414 black and white photos in the special section it was running on the Olympics.

Although he said, "It was a staff effort," he and two other photographers took the majority of pictures. Only a limited number of photographers from any one newspaper were allowed to cover the Olympics, and Stoelzie was one of three from The Register who were given credentials to cover the games.

He said covering the Olympics was "one of the most physically exhausting things I've done in my life." He said he was working 16 to 18 hours a day in the heat of the summer.

In addition, he was competing with more than 400 photographers from around the world and "most of them were competing for the same good spots." He said he would have to get a position by 5 a.m. or 6 a.m. to cover an 11 a.m. event.

He said the photographers would have to get there and "stake out" their spots and guard them "with your life."

Stoelzie "never even considered" that they would win a Pulitzer. When the paper found out it had won, he said, a couple of hundred bottles of champagne were opened and "the whole newsroom was just going crazy."

"We all knew we did a good job. It's just kind of nice that some other people know we did a good job," he said.

He said the victory was especially sweet because The Register won over the Los Angeles Times, one of the sponsors of the Olympics, that was allowed more than 20 photographers and was given the best positions to cover the events.

Stoelzie, who is a Carbondale native, said C. William Horrell, an SIU-C Cinema and Photography Department faculty member is the man who got him into photojournalism in the 1960s.

He worked at the Daily

Egyptian for several years covering everything from sporting events to the demonstrations that were beginning.

He remembers covering a demonstration when the police, not knowing he was with the press, thought he was another rioting student and chased him with clubs until he hid behind some bushes. On the whole, he said, his work here was "good experience."

He advises photographers starting out today to "start early," get an internship if they can and "just work your butt off."

After leaving SIU-C, Stoelzie joined the Navy and later worked at Paddock Publications in suburban Chicago, at the San Bernardino Sun in California and as a freelance photographer in Chicago. He has worked at The Register for about two years, he said.

Gas price rises likely to continue

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The overall average retail price of gasoline nationwide rose again during the past two weeks to 121.7 cents per gallon, up 1.68 cents, with further increases likely because dealers' profits have lagged behind wholesale hikes, industry analyst Dan Lundberg said Sunday.

The bi-weekly Lundberg Survey of more than 17,000 retail outlets in all 50 states shows the retail and wholesale price increases as nearly neck and neck, he said.

Wholesale gasoline prices went to 89.83 cents per gallon, up 1.68 cents per gallon since April 12.

Retail prices are listed with all state and federal taxes. Wholesale prices do not include taxes.

"The overall (profit) margin is 9.23 cents per gallon," Lundberg said, "down 3.22 cents from the low point of February. There is still more than 3 cents per gallon for consumers residing in the depressed margins which inevitably will be passed on."

At self-serve islands, the average regular leaded price nationally was 109.86 cents per gallon, up 1.87; regular unleaded was 117.81, up 1.89 and premium unleaded was 129.69, up 1.33 cents.

Simon criticizes high postage rates

By Lisa Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

High postage rates for magazines and newspapers are a "disservice" to the country and should not be tolerated, Sen. Paul Simon told a group of journalists recently.

Though business in the nation's capitol kept him from being there in person, Simon addressed a group of local media professionals and students at the combined banquet of the SIU-C School of Journalism and Southern Illinois Editorial Association, via video screen and telephone Thursday night. The banquet, a yearly event for both groups, was held at the Ramada Inn in Carbondale.

Simon said the U.S. Postal Service should offer second class rates that encourage the mailing of publications. "Whatever discourages America from being well informed weakens America," he said, adding that some of the nation's "biggest and best" magazines have gone out of business in part because of high postage rates.

Simon also took time to tell the group about his stands on other, more popular issues. He said he opposes helping the Contras in their attempts to overthrow the government of Nicaragua. "I do not favor sending military aid to Nicaragua," he said. "I just do not believe that we should be in the business of trying to overthrow military governments. If we use violence, I think other governments will feel justified in using terrorism and violence."

The freshman senator from Makanda said that he also opposes President Reagan's plans to visit a German cemetery to pay homage to German soldiers killed in World War II, including former Nazis. "I think the best thing the president could do is say 'We made a mistake' and not go there," he said.

After Simon's address, the editor's association honored Richard Lorenz, who was chosen Alumnus of the Year by the School of Journalism. Lorenz, a 1973 graduate of SIU-C, works as a copy editor in the sports department of the Chicago Tribune.

Earlier in the evening, 21 scholarships were awarded to SIU-C students and five awards for feature writing were presented.

Let bagel vendors stay on the Strip

AFTER IGNORING THE LAW FOR NINE YEARS, Carbondale city officials decided last week to enforce a city ordinance that makes it illegal for street peddlers to hawk their wares after 8 p.m.

The sudden decision to enforce the ordinance, which included no prior notice to the bagel men, was prompted by complaints from a downtown businessman who said that the street vendors were cutting into his sales. In addition to stealing his customers, the businessman charged, the vendors exploit without cost advantages other downtown businessmen have to pay for, like utilities. Another businessman complained that the vendor's customers make use of his bathroom facilities, though they buy none of his goods.

Apparently it has never been charged that the street vendors bothered anyone except their fellow businessmen. It is rather peculiar that this group of people has the right to put the bagel men out of business. After all, if a horse and buggy service moved into town, the city wouldn't give Yellow Cab the right to close it down, would it?

THE DOWNTOWN BUSINESS OWNERS HAVE A legitimate interest in keeping their sales thriving, but since none of the businesses offer the same type of goodies as the bagel men, it is difficult to see how a little diversity endangered those sales. Such diversity would seem to draw more people and bring a bit of class to the Strip.

The street vendors, all four of them, each pay $150 a year for the privilege of setting their stands up downtown. Before last week, the only restrictions on their operations were the weather and their own perseverance. Now the vendors are being pushed aside by the city and, needless to say, they are rebelling.

They have good cause. Their offerings are popular among downtown patrons and they provide some variety to the established features on the Strip. City officials should take note of the benefits of allowing the peddlers to work the downtown streets. Then they should repeal, or at least modify, the old ordinance that suddenly brought the bagel men's doom.

Study of foreign languages will enhance employability

Business, government and the military are all very concerned about the critical shortage of personnel with foreign language proficiency. Events such as Foreign Language Day, as well as the Daily Egyptian's coverage of it, serve to help students in making career choices.

The combination of a foreign language as a second (or first) major with a major in business, journalism, sciences or all kinds and a host of other specialties will enhance the graduate's employability and provide opportunities for career advancement after he or she has earned a niche in a company, newspaper, etc.

The secretary of education has just drawn up the tentative list of critical foreign languages for purposes of the Education for Economic Security Act. The list of several dozen contains all of the modern languages taught at SIU-C. — David A. Bedford, language laboratory director, Foreign Languages and Literatures.

Brewery's information campaign effective tool to combat alcoholism

There's a lot of talk these days — and a lot of action too — about what is commonly called "alcohol abuse." Fortunately, much of the talk and action is highly constructive.

There is no question about the extremely serious economic and social ramifications of the abusive use of alcohol. Unfortunately, not just a little of the talk is emotional rhetoric and at least an equal share of the action is in order to propose banning alcohol production to reduce abusive use of alcohol. Too much of the focus is on symptoms rather than causes. Too much of the action is misdirected.

Recently Miller Brewery Company visited the SIU-C campus to discuss just this issue of alcohol abuse. As can be expected, the alcohol beverage industry and its individual member companies have strong viewpoints on this subject. Miller has set aside its own business interests and biases to focus on this critical topic.

Motives can be attributed anyway you like. Some claim it is a function of commercial self-interest. Others say it is just good public relations or an expression of corporate responsibility. In reality, it is all of these; but it doesn't matter as long as there is positive action taking place.

I strongly believe in what Miller is doing and hopefully others in the alcohol beverage industry will do likewise. This effort is in the right direction and a good start to make the public intelligently aware of alcohol abuse.

Miller attempted to deal with the facts and not assertions, and information that prompts thought and not emotions. If all breweries and distilleries were to sponsor such helpful and informational programs as those provided by Miller on campuses, possibly the public would become more responsible in its drinking habits. — Kelli McCormack, Graduate Student, Health Education.

Cutting Amtrak a pointless waste

This letter has to do with President Reagan's plan to end Amtrak. In my opinion it is a poor decision.

First of all, Amtrak has spent quite a bit of money on cars and engines. Reagan's plan would put all that money to waste.

Second, the number of passengers has increased since 1972, when Amtrak was first formed.

In my opinion, Amtrak has been providing America with fairly dependable service for over a decade. Amtrak's passengers are safer on an Amtrak train than if they fly. Fewer Amtrak passengers have been killed or injured in the history of Amtrak than in a single major airline crash.

In short, ending Amtrak is a pointless waste. — Jay Scott McPherson, Carbondale.

Latest blood drive another success

The Mobilization of Volunteer Effort (MOVE) and the Arnold Air Force Society would like to thank all the donors, sponsors and volunteers of the recent record student blood drive.

Although we did not meet our personal goal of 2,200 pints, we did receive over 1,800 pints of blood, which exceeded the goal of the American Red Cross. SIU-C's campus blood drive is the only one to have met the Red Cross' goals last week. SIU-C remains the second largest campus drive in the nation.

It would be impossible to express our thanks to all those who helped out, but we would like to especially thank the following for their generous contributions:

Comtech, WCIL-FM, Student Center Information Desk, SIU-C rugby team, University Bookstore, SIU-C football team, Craftshop, women's basketball, Student Center Food Service, Arena Promotions, Inter-Greek Council, Long John Silvers, SIU-C College Republicans, Intercollegiate Athletics, Lions Club, Knights of Columbus, USO, Perfectly Clear Printing and Nancy Hunter Pei, director of the office of student development.

The winners of the Inter-Greek competition were Sigma Kappa and Theta Xi. Congratulations! — Jill Sattler, blood drive coordinator.

Springfest mood calm and relaxed despite weather

The music was good, the crowd was relaxed and the weather was for the most part accommodating at Springfest '85.

The celebration, which started about noon Saturday in the Old Main Mall, was generally calmer than last year's fest. The general mood of Springfest this year seemed to be one of relaxed enjoyment.

The day's events and the hot, humid weather provided good excuses for drinking, prompting festival-goers to bring along beer-filled coolers and just about any other form of alcohol.

POLICE KEPT a low profile and did not have too many problems, said SIU-C Security officer Todd Sigler. "The crowd has been pretty good so far," Sigler said late in the afternoon. "It's like a mini-Halloween."

Weather, as usual, turned out to be a major factor in this year's festival. Despite forecasts for rain, thousands turned out for the day's events and were rewarded with rain-free skies most of the afternoon. However, rain put a stop to Springfest shortly before 8 p.m., forcing the cancellation of guitarist Eddie Clearwater's scheduled performance and the closing fireworks.

The bands Cause for Passion, Uptown Rulers and Tools of Romance did manage to play before the evening rain and they kept large crowds sitting in front of the Miller Main Stage throughout the afternoon.

BUT PEOPLE were elsewhere too, wandering among the booths and events sponsored by the Student Programming Council and various Registered Student Organizations. The games and contests ranged from camel rides to Trojan tosses, with about every level of taste in between.

On the other end of the spectrum, the camel ride attracted "lots of kids and SIU-C students," said Michelle Entwistle, who worked at the booth. Riders were piled two or three at a time onto camels and led slowly around a small track.

THE OATMEAL Slip-n-Slide, sponsored by SPC Travel and Recreation, drew a number of "oohs" and "yuchs" from spectators, as participants slid and squished across oatmeal-covered sheets of plastic.

The Dodge Daytona Shopping Cart Races, sponsored by Smith Dodge, provided for some exciting race action and spectacular crashes as contestants hurled themselves around the twisting track. Crash helmets were provided, of course.

But there were no helmets provided in the egg toss, sponsored by the Obelisk II. The egg toss let contestants throw eggs at each other from 30 or 40 yards apart and try to catch them intact.

A hot-air balloon was filled and launched from a clearing near Quigley Hall, drawing applause from spectators.

Cause for Passion, Uptown Rulers and Tools of Romance rocked on the steps of Shryock Auditorium to introduce new modern rock to the crowd at Springfest Saturday.

Cause for Passion opened the Miller High Life Concert Series with a new twist to rock 'n' roll.

Using a marimba, synthesizer, bass guitar and several percussion instruments, the band expressed its "unique" style of music.

"Our music is 'Africanish,'" said band member Joe Czinga. "It's just our style and it's our influence."

Norda, the marimba player, said most of the band's songs are original, but its style can best be assimilated with Suzie and the Banchies and Inxs.

The Uptown Rulers, known for their ska-reggae, brought the crowd to its feet with a "zippy, zany, crazy style of rock 'n' roll reggae," said guitarist Michael Goodrich.

Keyboard player Dennis Willan said the band started out unsure of its music.

"We were almost self-indulgent, kind of eclectic. We played whatever we wanted," he said.

After finding its musical direction, the band was labeled "reggae," but preferred not to keep that label because the band members thought it would stagnate their future.

"We don't want people to expect reggae because it's just not reggae," Willan said. "We have very different hopes, and that's to not be stagnant. We don't want to get involved in a rut."

People danced near the stage while others sat and watched the band.

Listening to the band with friends, Lasharn Allen said, "I'd recommend them at a party. The music is something everybody seems to be jamming to."

The third band of the afternoon was Tools of Romance, playing for its biggest crowd ever.

"A couple nights ago we were in DeKalb for their Springfest, and it was a joke," said Bob Vodik, bass guitarist and vocalist. "This is organized and scheduled. We didn't expect it to be this nice."

The crowd went crazy over the music, said Eddie Chapa, Student Programming Council member. "People were slam dancing, and they knocked some lights over."

The final concert scheduled for the evening, Eddie "The Chief" Clearwater, was canceled because of rain. Clearwater was disappointed, but said he hopes to return to Carbondale soon.

Foreigner cuts effects and focuses on music

By Martin Folan

A laser light show and the SIU-C Vocal Jazz Ensemble highlighted the Foreigner concert Friday night at the SIU Arena.

Promoting its new album, "Agent Provocateur," Foreigner kept most of its performance away from fancy stage shows and backdrops and focused more attention on the music, which kept the audience's attention on the songs.

Foreigner opened the concert with songs from its first few albums, including "Feels Like the First Time," "Cold as Ice" and "Head Games," and played for an hour and a half.

Green laser lights beamed from the rafter behind the stage as the group played its 1982 hit, "Waiting for a Girl Like You." The laser lights and the 25- to 30-foot inflatable jukebox, which ballooned-up for the last song of the concert — "Jukebox Hero" — were the only special effects of the concert.

The SIU-C Vocal Jazz Ensemble joined Foreigner on stage midway through the group's recent hit, "I Want to Know What Love is," to sing the chorus. Swaying back and forth and clapping their hands, jazz group members joyfully belted out the chorus for "the most exhilarating" experience on stage, said Myrina Appgar, recalling the group's performance.

Singing with a professional rock group and hearing the applause of friends, classmates and other audience members was one of life's unforgettable moments for jazz ensemble member Donald Gordon.

"It's a rush, hearing the applause and knowing we'll never perform in front of a crowd like this again," he said.

Russian-born comedian Yakov Smirnoff entertained a capacity crowd at the Student Center Thursday. Smirnoff came to the United States in 1975 seeking artistic freedom.

Russian comic gets laughs with country comparisons

By Cathy Brown
Staff Writer

A Russian comedian sounds about as unlikely as a Mormon whine to most Americans, said Yakov Smirnoff. Unlikely, maybe, but not unheard of. Russian-born Smirnoff had the crowd in Ballroom D of the Student Center cracking up for an hour straight Thursday night.

Most of his material came from comparisons between Russia and America. Smirnoff said in some ways Russian audiences are better, because you have a "captured audience." The Russians have a best political joke contest, he said. The first prize is 20 years.

SMIRNOFF prefers America though, he said. Especially American women. "They think of things Russian women would never think of doing. Like showering."

Back in Russia he used to date a girl that looked like Orson Welles, he said, except she had a different color of beard. They can't help their looks though. "It's not really their fault," he says. They don't have beauty products like Oil of Olay; instead they use "lard of olay."

When Smirnoff first came to America, he had a lot of things to get used to. But discussing his first stop in Cleveland, he said, "They make you feel at home," because you feel like "I have to escape again."

HE HAD TROUBLE with the language. In Russia "yep" means sex. People here would say "yep, yep, yep," and Smirnoff would say, "What a country!"

Other words were hard too. He sometimes mistakenly walked into women's restrooms and they'd scream. That was different. "In Russia, they don't scream, you do."

He said he naturally had trouble finding a job when he got here because he couldn't speak the language. So he was forced to take a job selling drugs — for $3 an hour.

WELL, DON'T laugh. How was he supposed to know about drug trade. Drug use is different in Russia. "In Russia they have like, truth serum, or downers; they call them bullets."

The food in America also was hard to adjust to, he said, "because you have it." Supermarkets were a new experience for Smirnoff. He liked the cereal boxes that said "Look inside! Free surprise!" but it was a hassle because, "I had to dump all this stuff on the floor," he said.

SMIRNOFF WAS happy to answer questions from a curious American audience like, "What is television like in Russia?" It's a little different, he explained. "They bring in American horror movies. They call them documentaries." Some shows are similar to American TV shows: "The Love Barge" and "Leave it to Brezhnev," for instance.

They have MTV in Russia, too, he said. It stands for military television. Bands like the Rolling Tanks and the Police are popular, especially the song, "I'll Be Watching You."

Another person asked if they "party" in colleges the way it's done at SIU-C. "Here you get down and party," Smirnoff explained. "In Russia they get down and stay down because of the party."

"DO RUSSIANS have sex?" someone asked. "Yeah, but you need a coupon." There are restrictions, too. "You're not allowed to have a second orgasm until everyone else in the country has one," he said.

It's probably just as well considering how unattractive the women are. At single bars, "You're lucky if you go home alone," he said. On dates, Russians drink a bottle of vodka so the girl they're with looks good. "It's called foreplay."

Smirnoff closed the show by singing and dancing to an old Russian song and encouraging the audience to "sing along if you recognize it."

Brian Noonan, a radio-television major, opened the show with a short routine.

Sustaining Care program helps treat mental illness

Kelly Beatty
Student Writer

Sustain — To provide for the support of, to strengthen the spirits, courage and endurance." — Webster's New World Dictionary.

Sustaining Care is one of the five programs offered by the Jackson County Community Mental Health Center that provides a variety of services to the chronic mentally ill adult, said Cathy Moehring, sustaining care counselor.

"Chronic mental illness means that it will never go away permanently. The individual can go through periods of rational behavior, anywhere from one week to 10 to 15 years, but they will always have a relapse," Moehring said.

THE PERIODS of rational behavior are induced through psychotropic drugs that the individual takes for the chemical imbalance in the brain, she said. "We don't know who has a chemical imbalance. For all we know, anyone could have it, but it just hasn't been triggered by anything. We think the imbalance is triggered by drugs, alcohol, stress and so on," Moehring said.

Most of the people at sustaining care fall into four categories of mentally ill: personality disorders; affective disorders, such as manic depression; organic brain syndrome, Alzheimer's disease; and schizophrenia, she said.

Tied to the four categories are the overall symptoms that interfere with the individual's level of function in the community, such as emotions, thought processes and the ability to relate, Moehring said.

'We feel it is better to deal with the problems in the community where they stem, than in a hospital where they're secluded.'

— Cathy Moehring

"WE TRY to sustain them in the community, by helping to control their symptoms so that they can function in the outside world. One of the ways we do this through our day care program, Care House," she said.

The day care program is a group-oriented program that provides activities and skill groups to help the individual function outside of a hospital, said Sally Sanders, day care counselor.

Activities include bingo, cards and other forms of recreation. Skill groups provide instruction on money management, personal hygiene and assertiveness, Sanders said.

Care House also provides counseling, transportation and referrals for all of the individuals, 18 years and older, she said.

"WE AVERAGE 20-25 people a day, both regulars and new arrivals, with about 325 registered a year," Sanders said.

The Sustaining Care program tries to build realistic expectations, but Moehring said that this is quite a task.

"Many can't accept the fact that they have a problem, especially the younger population. They want to do what their peers are doing, like drinking and smoking marijuana, but it makes them crazy. When they come back here for counseling, we have to start from the beginning again," she said.

The population of the chronic mentally ill person has switched in the last 10 years, Moehring said. "It used to be adults, 45 to 55 years old. Now the majority of my cases are young men, 18 to 35 years old.

"THIS COULD be because the younger generation is using drugs and alcohol to relieve stress at an earlier age, therefore triggering a chemical imbalance at an earlier age," she said.

Not only has the population of the mentally ill switched, but also the treatment, Moehring said.

"Ten years ago, the chronic mentally ill were hospitalized for long periods of time, often their entire life. Now the typical hospital stay is 60 to 90 days. Many hospitals are trying to get it down to 30 days.

"We feel it is better to deal with the problems in the community where they stem than in a hospital where they're secluded," she said.

"WITH THE introduction of psychotropic drugs, the individual's rational period much longer, allowing for counseling," Moehring said.

The majority of the people who take psychotropic drugs have side effects such as tremors, blurred vision or dry mouth, she said. However, they can help alleviate them by taking counteracting drugs.

Lecturer says instructors can solve school problems

By Sarah Rohrs
Staff Writer

Teachers hold the key to some of the problems facing public schools today, said Martha L. Counts, daughter of the late education scholar George S. Counts.

Teachers should take control of the educational future of schools, Ms. Counts said. Counts wrote about this in "Dare the School Build A New Social Order" in 1932, she said, and those ideas are applicable to today's crises in education.

Ms. Counts spoke at the 13th Annual George S. Counts Lecture Series last week. The series was established in 1973 shortly after Counts' retirement from SIU-C.

COUNTS WAS a progressive educator and a sociologist who wrote many books. He came to SIU-C in 1962 at the request of President Delyte L. Morris as a distinguished professor, said John B. Hawley, chairman of the George S. Counts lecture committee.

Counts' lecture concentrated on the life of her father, some of his ideas on education and how those have shaped her own ideas on education. She spoke to an audience of about 150.

"George S. Counts was a man for all seasons, his life and work have meaning for us today," Ms. Counts said.

Counts grew up in an era when education was a new field, said his daughter. He thought that schools could provide the vehicle through which humankind could be improved, she said.

EDUCATION IS entering a transition period where there is a tremendous opportunity for educational reform, she said.

Teachers can play a large part in educational reform, Ms. Counts said. Her father advocated that teachers work for power.

"If teachers do not formulate plans regarding teacher qualification, content to be taught and how that should be taught, other groups, not as familiar with education, will make those decisions," she said.

Counts criticized the progressive education movement in the 1930s because the upper middle class leaders did not want their children mixing with children of lower backgrounds, she said.

TODAY, MINORITIES, especially blacks and hispanics, receive discrimination in schools and are victims of financial conspiracy against the poor, she said.

"Are we educating them so that they can make their contribution to society?" she said.

Another area of concern that Counts wrote about in "Dare The Schools Build A New Social Order" is the question of what schools should teach, she said.

COUNTS WROTE that "the most crucial issue in education is the question of the nature and extent of the influence which the school should exercise over the development of the child," she said.

Teachers have been criticized and even prosecuted for imposing their moral values on children, she said. This is not an easy matter to settle, she said, since the selection of material to teach carries in itself a certain value judgement.

As knowledge increases through the communication and electronic age, there will be a greater number of decisions to be made, she said.

"Educators need to take hold of their destiny, or else the legislators will do it for you, or someone else," she said.

Boat regatta founder says he's disappointed in event

Richard Archer, professor in design and founder of SIU-C's cardboard boat regatta, was standing close to the campus boat dock after races were over on Saturday.

His voice was tired from calling the play-by-play, and his face was sunburned. And his mood showed a little disappointment in this year's regatta.

Pointing to mounds of soggy cardboard, beer cans and junk around the race area, he said he didn't appreciate the amount of litter people left behind. He also said he thinks some people are starting to take the regatta too seriously.

"It's not the fun it used to be," said Archer. "People are starting to take things too seriously. C'mon, lighten up."

What helped form that attitude, perhaps, was a gripe Archer heard from two race participants who didn't like the way the semi-finals were run. Charles Keehn, from Chicago, and Brandon Bellrose, junior in computer science robotics — both paddling kayak designs — said they had some of the fastest times in their class in the regular heats. However, both were in the same semi-final heat with the eventual winner, Roger Brummert, from Odin.

Only the winners of each semi-final heat advance to the finals. So, when Brummert, who has won the paddling class for the last several years, won his semi-final heat, Bellrose and Keehn — even though their times were the top three fastest for the day — didn't advance to the finals. Bellrose said he thinks the race organizers plan it that way to increase the competition of the semi-finals.

"That's bull crap," Bellrose said. "It's happened like that for the last couple of years."

Archer said besides boat makers coming to the regatta only to win a race, another factor of this year's regatta which bothered him was the number of entrants who made parts of their boats with materials that weren't cardboard, like metal, wood and Styrofoam. One boat had a metal I-beam running down the center of it.

Another boat that was air-powered had an unprotected 9-foot long propeller slowly twirling behind it. Andrew Allen, SIU-C aviation student, said he learned a lot through the long hours of designing and building the propeller. Archer, however, said it could have "decapitated" someone.

The number of high school entries pleased Archer. Not only did this year's high school entries stay within boat-building rules, they didn't complain and they had nice designs, said Archer. Entrants from Du Quoin High School won the experimental boat class and The Pride of The Regatta, while Odin High School won the instant boat category.

Over 5,000 people watched the Cardboard Boat Regatta from the shores of Campus Lake Saturday afternoon.

Senior Olympics attracts about 75 local participants

By Bob Tita
Staff Writer

While the football Salukis were trying to impress their coaches and fans during a scrimmage at McAndrew Stadium Saturday, contestants in the first Southern Illinois Senior Olympics competed for fun and fitness.

"I think everyone that came enjoyed themselves immensely. Hopefully, the folks will be back next year and bring their friends," said George Whitehead, director of the Carbondale Park District, which organized the event.

About 75 people aged 55 and older took part in the olympics Friday and Saturday. More than 30 events were scheduled, including track and field contests, swimming, billiards, shuffleboard and table tennis.

Bob Ferrari, 55, of Herrin, won the five-mile bike race. He crossed the finish line at Evergreen Park in 15.20 minutes.

"My primary aerobic activity is running," said Ferrari who is in the real estate business. He won the 1,600-meter, the 800-meter and the 400-meter races. He said he runs between 45 and 65 miles a week.

Bill Kohring, 71, a retired farmer, finished the bike race in 33.33 minutes. "I try to work out about three or four days a week, either walking or riding," said Kohring, who suffered a stroke two years ago.

Many of the events were divided into age groups. The age groups consisted of people 55 to 59, 60 to 64, 65 to 69, and 70 and older.

Benjamin Dunn of Murphysboro, in the 65 to 69 age group, won the 100-meter freestyle and 50-meter freestyle swimming contest. John C. Taylor of Carbondale won the triathlon and the 100-meter freestyle swimming event in the 60 to 64 age.

"I work out just to keep busy," said Luella Bollmeier, 71, of Washington County. She said she enjoys the Senior Olympics because many of the activities planned for seniors don't involve physical activity.

Bollmeier won the mile walk and the 400-meter run. She placed second in the 50-yard dash.

The death of one contestant had a sobering effect on the olympics.

Cecil Sommer, 73, of New Holland, had won the softball throw and the standing long jump contests. He had already won the high jump event when he suffered an apparent fatal heart attack while attempting to break his personal best record in the high jump.

Church releases letter contents

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Mormon Church has released the contents of a 155-year-old letter some historians say could cast doubt on the official version of the way the church was founded, it was reported Sunday.

The letter, purportedly written by early church member Martin Harris to newspaper editor W.W. Phelps, mentioned certain magical events and told of how a spirit turned into a white salamander to temporarily prevent church founder Joseph Smith from obtaining golden plates that told of a new Biblical World on the American continent, which is the foundation of the church.

The Salt Lake Tribune reported that the official church version says Smith was told by God in 1823 he had been chosen to restore the church and was told by an angel where the plates were hidden.

Harris, who is described in church history as one of three witnesses who saw the angel and the sacred plates, also said in the letter that Smith translated the plates into what is now known as the Book of Mormon by putting a strange set of spectacles in an old hat and in the darkness translated the old Hebrew language into English.

Epcot Center class to visit behind scenes

By John Dyslin
Staff Writer

The Design Department is again offering a two week course at Epcot Center in Florida. The course will have added features this year, said Richard Archer, Design Department faculty member.

He said the biggest change in the course is that students will get to see and learn how the new laser light show at Epcot Center is put together. Archer said it is one of the most powerful laser light shows.

"The lights are so powerful that the FAA (Federal Aviation Administration) closes air traffic around Epcot during the show," Archer said.

While at Epcot, students will meet with the designers and operators of Epcot Center. Archer said the class will tour Epcot Center and Disney World just like other tourists, but the class will also go behind the scenes. He said the students will then get a greater appreciation for what they see.

At Epcot Center students will tour facilities in which hydroponics is being experimented with. Hydroponics is the science of growing plants in liquid mineral solutions.

Students will also see the techniques of aquaculture — the growing of food supplies such as shrimp, catfish and eels in captivity.

The monorail transportation system and the phone system at both Epcot Center and Disney World are other advanced technological facilities that will be investigated. Archer said the phone system is the only fiberoptic and digital phone system and lightwave cable system in operation.

Archer said one of the fascinating aspects of the course for him is the students' reactions. He said that many of them never knew the kind of things seen in the course existed.

"I think it's important for students of all majors to see that kind of operation and the technologies available," Archer said. "The things they see aren't in the text books because they're too new."

Archer said that at Epcot Center, sewage is being used as an energy resource instead of being seen as a problem. He said the waste water is cleaner than the water taken in for use as drinking water and that this illustrates the technological advancement of Epcot Center.

Another aspect of the course that Archer enjoys is the chance for the students to meet college students from around the world. He said that at the World Pavilion, foreign students operate their country's part of the pavilion. Part of the course is the mingling of students which enables everyone to learn.

Before arriving at the Epcot Center-Disney World complex, he said stops are made at Huntsville, Ala., to visit the space museum and the Marshall State Flight Training Center where the astronauts do some of their training for space and shuttle missions. He said that at the training center, students will see a mock shuttle in deep water which gives astronauts the chance to train for weightlessness.

The course offered is four credit hours and lasts from May 27 until June 9 with a tuition cost of $654. The deadline to sign up for the course is Tuesday.

News accounts trouble veterans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An increasing number of Vietnam veterans are seeking treatment for psychological problems triggered by the flood of news stories marking this week's 10th anniversary of the fall of Saigon.

The newspaper and television reports are causing nightmares, flashbacks, anxiety and depression for untold numbers of veterans, said Raymond Scurlfield, assistant director of the Veterans Administration's Readjustment Counseling Service.

"We have a number of centers saying they are being flooded with people," said Scurlfield, whose office oversees 157 counseling clinics for Vietnam vets nationwide.

Scurlfield said his information was based on "informal feedback" from many of the centers, most of which are located in big cities.

At the center in San Diego, counselor Bob Baker said, "Instead of five or six new people, we're seeing as many as 10 to 12 new clients a day."

"One guy, a middle-aged businessman, married with two children, came in after seeing all the stuff on TV," Baker said. "He felt panicky and felt suffering inside. It was like he was back in Vietnam."

Ches Goodman, a counselor at the center in Phoenix, Ariz., said he hasn't noticed any increase in clients, but "as more publicity comes out we expect to see some more."

Goodman said, "We've had a couple of spouses call in who noticed a sudden change in their husbands. They experienced a sudden depression after reading articles about Vietnam."

NFL draft won't likely yield instant signings

NEW YORK (UPI) — The euphoria of NFL draft day will die sooner than usual this year once player agents and club executives attempt to hammer out contracts for the first-round picks.

Unlike the past two years, there won't be a mad rush to sign players selected in the early rounds of Tuesday's draft. In fact, agents and NFL people alike expect many top picks to remain unsigned into training camp.

"I would predict this will be a fractious and quarrelsome signing season because the only alternative is to hold out," said agent Leigh Steinberg, who represents probable first-rounders Ron Holmes, Ken Ruettggers and Jim Lachey.

"It will take longer for guys to sign," Indianapolis Colts' general manager Jimmy Irsay agreed. "I suspect there will be holdouts, but they really don't have anywhere to go."

That's because the United States Football League has slowed its bidding war against the NFL to a trickle. As a result, the NFL's top draft choices will earn no more than their predecessors the past few years. The owners couldn't be happier, especially since salaries rose 25 percent from 1983 to 1984.

"This will be looked at as the turning point for NFL salaries," Steinberg said. "There's an attempt by NFL owners to plateau salaries to '84 levels, not to go up and maybe go down. This year we already have the first-round draft choice sign for less than last year, that almost never happens."

That player is Bruce Smith, the defensive end out of Virginia Tech. Buffalo made him the No. 1 pick in the 1985 draft and signed him to a $2.6 million deal over four years Feb. 28. A year ago, Irving Fryar signed for $2.65 million over four years when New England selected him with the draft's first pick.

Fryar actually signed for less than the $1 million a year contract quarterback John Elway signed as the first pick in 1983. But that was expected since Mike Rozier and Steve Young — who both signed with the USFL before last year's draft — were expected to be taken ahead of Fryar.

"I think there will be a different concept in signings," New England general manager Patrick Sullivan said. "I think there will be a big retrenchment in salaries. The signings will be more responsible, though the money on the table won't be chicken feed."

Sullivan said he expects players to hold out longer.

"But if eight out of the top 10 sign, I think the others would fall in line," he said.

The Minnesota Vikings, who failed to sign their first-round pick last year, have had two players publicly say they'd rather play elsewhere. The first was Bernie Kosar, the University of Miami quarterback who passed up Tuesday's draft in favor of going to Cleveland in a summer supplemental draft.

The Vikings would have settled for Bill Fralic with the second pick, but the outstanding offensive tackle from Pittsburgh's agent notified the club he isn't interested in playing for them. Minnesota may trade the pick instead, possibly to the Atlanta Falcons, who would take Fralic.

However, there's still good news for Vikings fans. Defensive end Keith Millard, their 1984 No. 1 pick who signed with Jacksonville of the USFL, may join Minnesota this season. And if the Vikings trade with Atlanta, they can still select Eddie Brown, Kosar's favorite receiver at Miami.

Defensive and offensive linemen might represent half the players selected in the first round Tuesday. With Houston all set to take defensive end Ray Childress of Texas A&M with the third pick, at least two of the top three picks will be defensive linemen.

Smith and Childress will probably be joined by defensive ends Mike Gann of Notre Dame, Richard Byrd of Southern Mississippi, Garin Veris of Stanford, Darryl Sims of Wisconsin and Kevin Brooks of Michigan in the opening round.

Among offensive linemen, Fralic is certain to go in the top four picks. Ruettggers, a tackle from Southern Cal, guard-tackle Lachey of Ohio State, tackles Lomas Brown of Florida, Kevin Allen of Indiana and center-guard Mike Kelley of Notre Dame are all expected to be first-round picks.

Three wide receivers could go in the first 10 picks — Brown, Al Toon of Wisconsin and Jerry Rice, a Division I-A All-America from Mississippi Valley State.

Ethan Horton of North Carolina and Greg Allen of Florida State are the best of the running backs; and Alabama's Ricky Moore and Owen Gill of Iowa are the top fullbacks. Herschel Walker, the 1982 Heisman Trophy winner now playing for New Jersey of the USFL, is eligible for Tuesday's draft and may be taken in the first three rounds.

USFL owners to decide whether to play summer or fall schedule

TEANECK, N.J. (UPI) — In what promises to be a heated session, United States Football League owners are to meet Monday, hoping to finally settle the issue of when they will play future seasons.

Despite the owners' decision last summer to move their season from the spring to the fall in 1986, a debate has continued to rage through the 10-week-old current campaign. League commissioner Harry Usher hopes to end the bickering and unite the league's owners Monday.

"The meeting was called to resolve the spring-fall issue once and for all," USFL Director of Communications Jim Byrne said.

In addition to the schedule issue, the owners may decide to fold the ownerless Los Angeles franchise, reducing the league — now in its third season — to 13 teams.

Tampa Bay owner John Bassett, the most vocal of the owners who favor continuing to play in the spring, thinks he has at least nine of the 14 current owners on his side. Bassett announced last month that his Bandits will play in the spring next year whether the rest of the USFL does or not.

Despite a heavy fine from Usher for publicly airing his complaints, Bassett hasn't tempered his stance.

"I don't care what the owners do in New York Monday," Bassett said Friday. "I don't care if the vote is 13-1 for the fall; I ain't playing then."

"We have eight guys, I think, who want to play with me in the spring and summer, and we will."

Bassett has allies from some of the southern teams in the league who fear trying to buck college football in the fall. However, just five votes are needed to block a move back to the spring.

At best, the pro-spring owners can hope for a delay in the change of seasons.

New Jersey owner Donald Trump was the first and loudest voice to push for a change to the fall. Trump has said he'll settle to push the move back a year or two but has little interest in continuing in a permanent spring league.

Trump was ecstatic when the owners voted unanimously last August in New Orleans to shift to the fall. The decision coincided with the fledgling league's filing of a $1.3 billion antitrust suit against the NFL.

Trump, a New York multimillionaire real estate developer, called the New Orleans meeting "the most positive business meeting I've ever been associated with."

However, it soon became evident that his support wasn't quite solid. ABC, which has televised USFL games for three spring seasons, has no interest in televising its games in the fall.

Freshmen shine for men's track team at Drake Relays

By Mike Frey
Sports Editor

Statistically speaking, the SIU-C men's track and field team did not have a banner outing at the 76th Drake Relays at Des Moines, Iowa, this weekend.

The Salukis' 4 x 400-meter relay team was the only SIU-C entry to place at the meet, as it finished fourth with a time of 3:00.27. Michael Franks' time of 44.67 in the anchor leg of the race paced the Salukis in the event.

Despite the absence of top finishes by his team, Coach Bill Cornell said the Salukis continued to show improvement in the meet. He said he was particularly happy with the performances of his large freshmen class.

"Although we didn't sparkle at the Drake Relays we had a good performance," Cornell said. "We've had some freshmen do some awfully good things and that's encouraging for the future."

Cornell said five freshmen — Steve Breathett, Eric Gray, Connor Mason, Bret Garrett and Richard McDonnell — all had outstanding meets. The improved performances came at a good time, Cornell said, because the Salukis will compete in the Missouri Valley Conference outdoor championships, also at Des Moines, in two weeks.

Breathett had a 47.5 split time in the preliminary heat of the 4 x 400-meter relay Friday. He faltered Saturday, turning in a split time of 48.98, but Cornell wouldn't criticize Breathett for his effort.

"The only one that messed up was Steve Breathett in the first leg, but you can't jump on a young kid for that," Cornell said. "He simply tried too hard. The kid from Baylor is awfully good and he tried to keep pace with him."

Gray, who has replaced Mike Elliott as the second leg in the event in recent weeks, had a split time of 47.3

Saturday. Cornell said Gray, who came to SIU-C from Kankakee, has made significant progress.

"He had a super weekend," Cornell said. "He's made a great breakthrough."

Mason ran the 400-meter dash in a split time of 48.8 Friday.

Garrett and McDonnell both turned in strong performances in the distance medley.

Tor Smith was the Salukis' best performer in the individual events. He finished eighth in the shot put with a toss of 57 feet, 11 inches.

The remainder of the Saluki squad competed in a twilight meet Saturday at Murray, Ky. Rain hindered the Salukis' performances, however, and no SIU-C athlete placed in an event.

The Salukis return to action on Friday when they host Illinois in a dual meet at McAndrew Stadium. It will be SIU-C's only home meet of the year.

Malone, Sixers blast Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Moses Malone scored 27 points and Clint Richardson came off the bench to add 22 to power the Philadelphia 76ers to a 127-105 victory in the opening game of their NBA playoff series against the Milwaukee Bucks.

Game 2 of the best-of-seven series is Tuesday night at Milwaukee.

The Milwaukee loss snapped a 16-game winning streak at home.

The game was decided in the third quarter when Philadelphia went on an 11-0 run that gave them an 81-59 lead. The 76ers took a 94-74 lead going into the final period.

Both coaches benched their starters for most of the fourth quarter as the Philadelphia substitutes ran up an even bigger lead.

Charles Barkley came off the bench to score 19 for the winners while Maurice Cheeks scored 18.

Milwaukee was led by Terry Cummings' 17 points and Sidney Moncrief's 16, but Moncrief did not score in the second half.

In the first half, Malone scored 18 points to pace the 76ers to a 66-51 lead going into the third quarter.

Most of Malone's points came inside, where the 6-foot-10 center outmuscled Milwaukee's four centers, who scored a total of 9 points in the first half, 19 in the game. Richardson came off the bench to score 14 first-half points for Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, which defeated Washington 3 games to 1 to advance to the second round of the playoffs, finished the regular season with a 58-24 record. Milwaukee won 59 regular season games and dumped Chicago 3 games to 1 to advance in the playoffs.

Jazz rally to overcome Rockets

HOUSTON (UPI) — Thurl Bailey scored 15 fourth-quarter points and the Jazz outscored the Rockets 37-21 in the final quarter Sunday to send Utah into the Western Conference semifinals with a 104-97 victory over Houston.

"The Jazz won the best-of-five series 3 games to 2."

Utah, which finished the regular season with a 41-41 record — seven games behind the Rockets in the Midwest Division — advances to play the winner of Sunday night's San Antonio-Denver game.

Adrian Dantley hit six free throws and Bailey added three in the final 77 seconds to seal the victory before a stunned crowd of 16,016 at the Summit.

The Jazz, who shot just 28 percent in the first half, trailed 76-67 entering the final period. Utah coach Frank Layden then used reserves Billy Paultz, Jeff Wilkins, Fred Roberts and John Stockton with Bailey and that proved to be the combination that turned the game around.

Starters Darrell Griffith, Rickey Green and Dantley were on the bench for 10 1/2 minutes of the final period. Center Mark Eaton, who set an NBA record for blocked shots this year.

Men netters sweep quadrangular meet

By Mike Frey
Sports Editor

The SIU-C men's tennis team swept three matches this weekend to fulfill a goal Coach Dick LeFevre had set at the beginning of the season — to finish with a winning record.

The Salukis entered the quadrangular meet, played at the Arena tennis courts, with a 12-13 record. But SIU-C defeated Illinois State, Alabama-Birmingham and Evansville in succession to end the regular season with a 15-13 mark. The Salukis will close the season this weekend, when they compete in the Missouri Valley Conference tournament which starts on Thursday at Tulsa, Okla.

"I figured we'd end up 16-14, but we lost a couple of matches early because of rain and 15-13 was as close as we could get," LeFevre said. "It was a satisfying season. We got a couple of kids back from injuries and that made the difference."

The Salukis opened play Saturday morning against Illinois State. SIU-C lost the first three singles matches, but stormed back to win the remaining six matches and claim a 6-3 victory over its MVC opponent.

Per Wadmark, Gabriel Coch and Chris Visconti lost at the No. 1, 2 and 3 singles spots respectively, but Rollie Olinquo, Scott Krueger and Lars Nilsson won their matches to keep SIU-C alive.

The Salukis swept the doubles matches, as Wadmark and Olinquo won at No. 1 doubles, Coch and Nilsson won at No. 2 doubles and Visconti and Wadmark won at No. 3 doubles.

"It was tighter than heck," LeFevre said of the ISU match. "I actually thought ISU would win when they won the three singles matches, but we fought back. We needed to win two of the three doubles matches and we won all three."

The Salukis met Alabama-Birmingham Saturday afternoon and beat the Blazers 8-0.

SIU-C had a relatively easy time with UAB as all but two of the matches were settled in two sets. The Blazers' Christian Ostibe extended Gabriel Coch to three sets at No. 2 singles and Marissio Arze did the same to Krueger at No. 5 singles.

The Salukis battled Evansville Sunday and beat the Aces 6-3. The Salukis again swept the doubles matches to gain the victory.

Coch, Olinquo and Nilsson won their singles matches. Wadmark and Olinquo won at No. 1 doubles, Coch and Nilsson won at No. 2 doubles and Krueger and Visconti won at No. 3 doubles.

LeFevre said the quadrangular meet served as an excellent tuneup for the conference meet.

"They were all tough teams," he said. "We'll see more of those at the conference tournament."

1985 Spring Semester Final Examination Schedule Information

The examination schedule attempts to avoid examination conflicts by providing separate examination periods for Tuesday-Thursday lecture classes. Other information about final examinations is listed below:

1. The class final exam period is scheduled based on the meeting time and days configuration listed on the first line of the class entry in the Schedule of Classes book (which should be the same as the first printed line for the section on the registered student's schedule print-out). For example, a class section is listed in the Schedule book on two lines in the manner:

08:00 T Th
09:00 - 10:50 W

The listed starting time for the first line of entry is "8:00". The meeting days of that first line are "T TH", and therefore are in the category "Only T or TH or T TH". The Exam Date and Period is by the attached Spring 1985 Final Examination Schedule to be Tue., May 7, at 5:50 - 7:50 p.m.

2. Classes should plan to hold their final examination in their regularly scheduled class rooms. The space scheduling section of the Office of Admissions and Records will forward to departments information relative to the location for examinations for those classes that cannot hold examinations in their regularly scheduled rooms because of a space conflict. This will be done sufficiently in advance of the final examination days to provide sufficient notice for all.

3. Students who find they have more than three examinations on one day may petition, and students who have two examinations scheduled at one time should petition their academic dean for approval to take an examination during the make-up examination period on the last day. Provision for such a make-up examination period does not mean that students may decide to miss the scheduled examination time and expect to make it up during this make-up period. This period is to be used only for students whose petitions have been approved by their dean.

4. Students who must miss a final examination may not take an examination before the time scheduled for the class examination. Information relative to the proper grade to be given students who miss a final examination and are not involved in a situation covered in the preceding paragraph will be found in the mimeographed memorandum forwarded to members of the instructional staff at the time they receive the final grade listing for the recording of grades.

Women's golf team places third at GCAC tournament

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

Although the Saluki women golfers played well, there was one thing SIU-C coach Sonya Stalberger didn't count on: Other teams were outstanding in the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference Championship held last weekend in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Favored Illinois State won the 54-hole event with a 918 total. The University of Northern Iowa, host school, edged SIU-C for second place, 940-943.

"I'm disappointed in the third place. It's hard to accept when you play well and finish worse than you expected. The simple fact is that the other teams played better," Stalberger said.

An amazing difference, Stalberger pointed out, was that last year's championship Saluki team shot 976 on a similar course with similar conditions, but that score would have been just good for fourth place this year.

"That shows you what direction women's golf is going," Stalberger said.

If a 33-stroke improvement over last year wasn't good enough, the only place the Salukis could have closed the gap was on the green.

"They (ISU) made the putts they had to make, and we missed them. That leads me to the conclusion that I know in my mind: putting is confidence. Confidence comes right back to experience — you only have confidence if you've been in tough situations before," Stalberger said.

The Pheasant Ridge Golf Course advantage and Margot Gillespie's 73-74-78 helped UNI beat SIU-C for the first time this year.

"I think that course is the only place they could beat us. It rewarded the long hitters and didn't penalize the ones that hit it a little wild. That's the type of team they are — more of a power team.

"They had an outstanding performance from Margot Gillespie, whereas we didn't have any tremendous rounds, but had five solid players with five solid scores," Stalberger said.

Despite leading after the first day's 36 holes, Gillespie fell second to medalist Jackie Ryan of Illinois State who fired 76-73-75 on the par 75 course.

Lisa Kartheiser ended her SIU-C career with a 78-80-77 sixth place total, which was eight strokes better than her third place finish her junior year.

"That's nothing to be ashamed of. She closed out a fine career for SIU by leading the team. She's looking at a bright future ahead with her golf career," Stalberger said.

The rest of the Salukis also look to a bright future. Freshman Gi Magnusson took seventh place, juniors Jill Bertram and Pat Putman tied for eighth, and freshman Tina Kozlowski placed 13th. Freshman Myona Weller also finished in the top 15 in exhibition play.

"We shot some of our best, most consistent rounds," Stalberger said. "We've got to chalk this up to experience. Like I told the players afterward, 'Our day will come. We've been close all year and we just never broke through. When we start believing in ourselves, making our putts, and having confidence, we'll win our share.'" ference play for the regular season.

Going into Sunday's MVC action, Wichita State led Indiana State by a game, with Bradley in third place at 7-7, and Illinois State in fourth at 6-8. The top four teams will advance to post-season play.

SLUMP: Creighton sweeps Salukis added another run in the sixth off Wooden, who went the distance for SIU-C.

Wooden gave up just five hits, but the Saluki bats that have been shut out three times in their last six MVC games, failed to give him much support. SIU-C has now scored a total of 13 runs in its last eight games, six of which it has lost.

The double-header loss leaves the Salukis with a 28-21 overall record, but more importantly 5-9 in the MVC. After Monday's twinbill, SIU-C will play four games at second-place Indiana State next weekend to conclude con-

Walker led off the ninth with a single to right and was sacrificed to second by Carlton Fisk. Cowley, 0-1, intentionally walked Oscar Gamble then retired Darryl Boston before walking Jerry Hairston and Guillen in succession.

Britt Burns, 3-1, relieved starter Rich Dotson to open the eighth and picked up the victory.

Gamble tied the score 3-3 with a two-run homer in the bottom of the seventh inning off Cowley.

The Yankees took a 3-1 lead in the top of the inning after loading the bases with one out against Dotson. Bobby Meacham hit a slicing shot to left field which outfielder Rudy Law dropped on a diving attempt at a catch as Ken Griffey scored and Rickey Henderson followed with a sacrifice fly to score Mike Pagliarulo.

White Sox defeat Yankees; Berra fired

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ozzie Guillen drew a bases-loaded walk from Joe Cowley with two out in the ninth inning Sunday to force home the winning run and give the Chicago White Sox a 4-3 victory over the New York Yankees.

After the game the Yankees fired Yogi Berra as manager and replaced him with Billy Martin. Berra had replaced Martin as manager of the club on Dec. 16, 1983.

"SHOOTING PAINS"

No disc degeneration is not what happens to your old 78 r.p.m. records when you leave them in your damp basement for years. Rather, it's the deterioration of the intervertebral discs, the shock absorbers between each bony vertebra of your spinal column. It can result in chronic backache and other back problems.

If it is caused by ordinary wear and tear, there is little that can be done about it. However, disc degeneration may also be caused by a disturbance in the "nutrition" of the disc tissue. This disc is normally nourished by absorbing essential elements from tissue fluids that surround it. Any interference in the fluid movement in this area can cause localized tissue starvation.

With adjustment of the spine, the doctor of chiropractic may be able to relieve nutritional disc degeneration. The adjustment restores normal movement and fluid balance. It can also be used to realign spinal vertebrae, thus taking excess pressure off discs.

Track women gain mixed results from meets

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

Saluki women's track coach Don DeNoon had mixed feelings about his team's performance after dividing them into two squads last weekend.

DeNoon was pleased with SIU-C's performance at the Murray State Twilight Invitational at Murray, Ky., but he was disappointed with his team's performance at the Becky Boone Relays at Richmond, Ky.

"Torrential rains Saturday made everybody's performance below par at Becky Boone," DeNoon said. "But I don't know if that was the total cause."

DeNoon sent six athletes to Becky Boone but they failed to record a first-place performance.

The Salukis were led by sprinter Denise Blackman and field event performer Cynthia Joy, both of whom finished second in their events.

Blackman recorded the best time in the preliminaries of the 400-meter dash with a hand time of 54.79 seconds, but finished second in the finals in 55.34.

"Denise blew everyone away in the preliminaries but she couldn't get loosened up in the finals, and that hurt," DeNoon said.

Joy finished second in the javelin with a throw of 137 feet, 8 inches. She had a throw over 150 feet Friday but it was nullified when she scratched on the attempt.

The Salukis received a third-place performance from Sharon Leidy in the heptathlon (4,488 points), and fourth-place performances from Connie Price in the shot put (44-11.5) and Laurie Dvorak (135-4) in the javelin.

"Sharon was doing well the first day of the heptathlon but the rain affected her performance and her competitors' performance," DeNoon said. "Sharon was a solid third going into Saturday and she finished third."

Host Eastern Kentucky won the 19-team meet at Becky Boone and Gateway Conference member Illinois State finished second.

At Murray State, the Salukis were led by first-place finishes from Jennifer Bartley in the 190-meter dash (12.56) and Darcie Stinson in the 400-meters (personal best 58.31).

Host Murray State dominated the non-scoring meet with 10 first-place finishes.

"I was pleasantly surprised with our athletes at Murray State," DeNoon said.

"We were the second best team without some of our good athletes we sent to Becky Boone. We only took six runners to Becky Boone but that made a big difference at the Murray State meet."

In the sprints, SIU-C's Brenda Beatty finished third in the 100-meters at 12.76 and Cathy Davis finished second in the 200-meters with a personal best 26.24.

The Salukis finished second through fifth in the long jump. Bartley finished second in 17-2.5, Carmen Robbins finished third in 17-1.5, Beatty placed fourth in 17-0.75 and Sydney Edwards was fifth in 16-10.

In the triple jump, Edwards finished second in 36-0 and Robbins was fourth in 34-3.

In the high jump, Daria Patterson finished third in 5-2 and Stephanie Sweetin added a third-place finish in the shot put at 39-3.

DeNoon entered two teams in the 4 x 400-meter relay and they finished second and third, respectively.

The Saluki quartet of Stinson, Davis, Kathy Raske and Bartley finished second in 4:04.93, and the team of Felicia Veal, Robbins, Betsy Gimber, and Beatty finished third in 4:05.55.

Four athletes who turned in personal best efforts at Murray State included Bonnie Helmick (10:21.2) and Amy Marker (10:23.1) in the 3,000-meters; and Veal (66.22) and Raske (70.54) in the 400-meter hurdles.

Gross hurls Phillies to 3-2 victory over Cubs

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Kevin Gross, a surprise starter, tossed six shutout innings and the Philadelphia Phillies took advantage of two errors Sunday to defeat the Chicago Cubs 3-2.

Gross was pressed into service when scheduled starter Steve Carlton was sidelined by a sore shoulder. The right-hander scattered three hits through the sixth but left after the Cubs scored on a single by Gary Matthews and a double by Leon Durham to open the seventh.

Larry Andersen came on and served up an RBI double to Keith Moreland that made it 3-2 but then retired the side. Andersen finished to pick up his second save while Gross earned his second victory in four decisions.

Rick Sutcliffe, 3-2, allowed only six hits and struck out nine in seven innings but was the victim of a shaky defense and took the loss.

Philadelphia scored in the first inning after shortstop

Larry Bowa threw away Juan Samuel's grounder. Samuel stole second and third and scored as Von Hayes grounded out.

The Phillies made it 3-0 in the fourth. Hayes opened the inning with a double.

Outfielders Kathy Richert and Rhonda Snow each went four for seven, with Snow getting two doubles and the game-winning RBI. Jenny Shupryt got two extra-base hits in four at bats, adding a double and a triple to give her the team lead in both categories. Lisa Peterson picked up the win to go 9-8 on the season. Mindi Smith took the loss for Western.

The Salukis were then shut out for the second time in four games, losing 1-0 on just two hits. Kelly Powell, who allowed only four hits herself, took the loss to drop her record for the season to 9-7.

"We need to get more consistent hitting out of our whole lineup," Brechtelsbauer said, adding that she was "especially disappointed because our hitting had been improving over the last few weeks."

"We got excellent pitching, but we didn't hit the ball. When we got hits, they weren't together. It was, all in all, an exhausting weekend."

The Salukis will have one last chance to get back on the winning track before finishing conference play next weekend.

Defense dominates Maroon-White game

By Mike Frey
Sports Editor

The annual Maroon-White football game was supposed to be the final showdown between Kevin Brown and Pat King for a starting berth as the Saluki quarterback next fall.

However, because of stellar defensive play and sub-par performances by both quarterbacks, Coach Ray Dorr indicated he will probably wait until fall practice to decide on a starter.

The White team broke a scoreless tie at halftime and gained a 23-0 victory in the game, played Saturday at McAndrew Stadium. But it was the defense that dominated the scrimmage. Both team's defensive units continually frustrated the offense.

The White team, which had the No. 1 defense, was particularly impressive. The unit intercepted six passes, recovered a fumble and allowed only nine first downs. The performance earned cautious praise from Dorr following the game.

"We have the makings of a good defense," Dorr said. "We are playing a lot more physical, a lot more sound than last year."

Dorr didn't criticize the play of his quarterbacks, however. Brown led the first-team Maroon unit during the first half of the game and King called the plays for the first team in the second half.

Brown and King both completed 4-of-9 passes and threw three interceptions while running the No. 1 offense. King finished with eight pass completions for 57 yards and Brown completed 10-of-24 passes for 79 yards. Brown also threw for a touchdown, a 17-yard strike to Bobby Sloan in the closing minute of the game.

"The quarterbacks still aren't there but I wasn't unhappy with the way they played," Dorr said. "I think the wide receivers could help them by doing a better job of catching the ball."

"In the fall, they'll come out pretty dogged even. I think we'll probably have to make our decision based on that."

"In the second half I was frustrated," King said. "We drove down the field but had too many mistakes. We have to score in those situations, but right now we're inexperienced at the skill positions."

"In the first half I choked," Brown said. "I just need to relax. This was much more like a game situation than the other scrimmages."

The Salukis had several defensive standouts, including safeties John Field and Bobby McNabb. McNabb intercepted two passes and Field returned an interception 25 yards in the fourth quarter for a touchdown.

The remaining nine points came on three field goals by Ron Miller, who connected from 25, 33 and 44 yards out.

All three of the field goals were set up by a big defensive play. An interception by Tony Jackson led to the first score. The second field goal was set up by an interception by Frank Carr and the third came after Jackson recovered a penalty in Maroon territory.

Punter Drew Morrison also had a good game. He had punts of 82 and 66 yards for the White.

At halftime, Dorr and the coaching staff honored the most improved players for the spring. Tyrone Washington was named the most improved defensive back; Jim White the most improved defensive lineman; Rick Spielman the most improved linebacker; Byron Mitchell the most improved running back; Derrick McClellon the most improved receiver and Pat Call the most improved offensive lineman.

The Salukis suffered only one injury during the game, a shoulder injury to starting fullback Bruce Phibbs. Dorr said he expects every player to be ready for fall practice, although Phibbs, quarterback Joe Graves and tight end Rod Landon may have to undergo surgery during the summer.

Creighton sweeps baseball team as slump continues

By Stan Goff

After Saturday's double-header loss at Creighton, the baseball Salukis find themselves in need of a sweep of their own on Monday at Omaha, Neb., to stay alive in the hunt for a spot at the Missouri Valley Conference post-season tournament.

SIU-C managed just five hits in Saturday's twinbill as the Bluejays won 9-0 and 3-1, giving each team a record of 5-9 in MVC play. The teams, which are now tied for fifth in conference, play another double-header at 10 a.m. Monday, after Sunday's play was pushed back a day because the field was too wet.

Gary Bockhorn, who entered game one with a 2.41 earned run average, third-best in the Valley, was knocked out by the Bluejays with two outs in the second inning after giving up five runs. Paul Saikia replaced Bockhorn, whose record fell to 3-3, and gave up two runs in both the fourth and fifth innings.

Bill Meier led off the game with a single and, after stealing his 21st base of the season, scored on a single by Jim Osgood to give Creighton starter Brad Kucera (3-1) all the support he needed.

Kucera, who struck out seven Saluki batters in six innings, and John Saylor combined on a two-hit shutout and handed SIU-C its third straight defeat.

Singles by outfielders Steve Finley and Gerald Pitchford accounted for all of the Salukis' offense in the first contest.

The Salukis' pitching, which leads the MVC with a 3.84 ERA, looked much better in game two, but the SIU-C bats continued to slump, scoring just one run on three hits off Jeff Kopyta (7-1).

The Salukis' run came in the first after Pitchford started the game off with a double and advanced to third on a fielder's choice off the bat of Mike Gellinger. Pitchford then scored on a single by Jay Burch. It was Pitchford's 50th run of the year, tops for the club.

A single by Robert Jones was the only hit SIU-C managed to get off Kopyta after the first inning, and the Bluejays scored twice in the bottom of the third to take a 2-1 lead off Saluki right-hander Mark Wooden (3-3).

Wooden walked the bases full with one out in the third, and Osgood singled home Creighton's first run to tie the score at 1-1. Mike Barbato, who had three RBI in the opening contest, then hit a sacrifice fly to drive home the winning run. The Bluejays

Most people at the Gateway Conference Tennis Tournament assumed Wichita State was a strong favorite to win the meet based on the six No. 1 seeds it received in a vote by the conference coaches.

But the SIU-C women's tennis team proved statistics can be misleading after it won three singles titles and two doubles titles to win the conference meet with 54 points. The Shockers finished second with 48 points.

"I felt if several girls played well they could win their flights and the four seniors on our team wanted to end their season on a high note so I'm not really surprised we won the title," Saluki women's tennis coach Judy Auld said.

"People thought Wichita State would walk away with the title but I knew different and so did the Wichita State coach (Jay Louderback). He realized we had a better team than we showed when we lost to them 9-0 in February."

The Salukis received first-place performances from Ellen Moellering at No. 4 singles, Maureen Harney at No. 5 singles, Amanda Allen at No. 6 singles, and the No. 2 doubles team of Alessandra Molinari and Allen and the No. 3 doubles team of Mary Pat Kramer and Harney.

In the finals at No. 4 singles, Moellering defeated Erin Swart of Wichita State by the scores of 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The second-seeded Harney defeated top-seeded Clare Baldwin of Wichita State 7-5, 6-0 in the finals at No. 5 singles. Allen gave the Salukis a sweep in the bottom three singles positions when she defeated Maria McDonald of Northern Iowa.

Softball Salukis lose 3 of 4 GCAC contests

"We got excellent pitching performances, but we just didn't score any runs. In fact, I would say that's the story of the whole weekend," SIU-C softball coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said, sizing up weekend play that saw the Salukis drop three of four conference games.

The Salukis were swept on Friday and split on Saturday to fall from 5-4 in the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference to 6-7, 18-16 overall.

"We wouldn't have been in too bad shape if we'd have split, but the way things turned out we definitely lost ground," Brechtelsbauer said.

"This hurts. If we want a decent seed in the tournament

(the Gateway conference championship), we'll have to win the rest of our games," she said.

In the first game on Friday, Bradley pitching sensation Beth Hawkins started by striking out four Salukis in the first two innings, finishing with six total strikeouts to up her conference high total to 169 for the season. The Salukis managed just three hits and lost 2-0. With the win, Hawkins improved her record to 12-6 while Lisa Peterson took the loss.

In the second game, the Salukis took a 2-0 lead, but the Braves scored three runs in the sixth inning to take the lead and the win. Kelly Powell took the loss while Kim Rosenbohm got the win.

"That was a real heart-breaker," Brechtelsbauer said. "All we needed were six more outs, and we just couldn't hold them."

The Salukis got their first win of the weekend on Saturday, but they had to take Western Illinois to 13 innings before getting the victory.
